For month and south they gather from the east and from the west, All those the country over, Who love Cooksville best.

Those who are there are savages, Those who are Millers by the score, There are Robertsons and Richardsons And half a hundred more.

COOKSVILLE REUNION DAY

There's an old town in Wisconsin, That's still little known to fame, It's a place of peace and quiet, And Cooksville is its name.

And every year in the month of June, The world is fair.

Its former residents gather And hold a picnic there.

Froth month and south they gather from the east and from the west, All those the country over, Who love Cooksville best.

Those who are there are savages, Those who are Millers by the score, There are Robertsons and Richardsons And half a hundred more.

And every one in best array, Goss hurrying to the square, Excitement reigns in old Cooksville And cars and trucks are a sight.

The days of long ago, When carriages were luxuries And cars they did not know.

The tables fairly groan With all the things to eat, The old and the young, The cakes were rich and sweet.

As all the people gossip, Over cup and plate.

They, some ancient tales relate, One of these I'll mention As I recall it now.

It is a Madison lady, Who fell over a Cooksville cow.

There were many sad stories, But they are mixed with sadness.

For those who have gone before To a better and grander reunion, And will meet with us no more.

But we hope next year that others Who cannot be here today Will come and join in the gladness Of Cooksville Reunion Day.

News Notes From Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Word comes to us that Marion Davies, cosmopolitan star, has had her famous feet insured for $300,000. This makes us wonder if the pretty little film star is to hark back to her dancing days and if she does return to her first love will she dance in the films or put on her dancing shoes to answer us?

Did you ever stop to think how few dancers, really good dancers, are appearing before the camera today? They can almost be counted on the fingers of one hand. Marion is one of the few who belong to that slender category. She preaches dancing as the exercise par excellence and has the whole history of the art on the tip of her tongue and illustrations to go with it in the tips of her fingers. According to the account of her make she usually wears out two pairs of dancing shoes a week. These come to her from Paris, Paris, France. In lots of 60 pairs, and are built on a round-toed pattern favored by the Royal Copenhagen ballroom girls. She wears them out in a week.

TO INSPECT LOCAL CAVALRY, TUESDAY

Big Rally at Armory Tomorrow Night—Want More Recruits.

Janesville's new cavalry unit of the Wisconsin national guard will be formally inspected at the armory, Tuesday night.

For the purpose of adding recruits to the company and getting other young men interested, a special meeting has been called for 8 o'clock tomorrow night to be held in the armory. The public is invited, especially those considering enlistment.

By a recent ruling of the war department all national guard units inspected and mustered into federal service before June 1, which is next Wednesday, will benefit under the next congressional appropriation. Capt. H. Cherbonnier of the local troop explained today: News of this ruling caused chaos in the home outfit as few had signed when it was received.

Members Working Hard

Every member is making all possible effort to get a big turnout for tomorrow night's meeting. Each will try to secure three prospective cavalrymen to attend.

Troopers have been aided in the recruiting drive by the war department's ruling of June 4 which permits any ex-service man to enlist in the national guard for one year only, if he does so within two years after date of discharge from federal service. This means the pay of a guardman has also helped to get recruits. Under the last ruling, members of the national guard will receive one day's pay for each drill of an hour and a half's duration that they attend on the basis of their rank as enlisted men.

Duthie Is Commissioned

W. E. Duthie, graduate of the officer's training school at Camp Pike, Ark., now with the Bovier City Feed company, has been appointed second lieutenant in the cavalry outfit here. Capt. Cherbonnier feels that Lieutenant Duthie's record in federal service well fits him to hold a commission in the national guard.

WHERE THE DEMOCRATIC HOSTS ARE GATHERING

Some Say This Was Good Joke

A dummy, dangling from a tree, the police, and the county coroner—the story has just leaked out.

It seems that some practical jokers of the town were doing nothing else to do last Sunday night rigged up a dummy, with some straw, overalls, and a jacket, and suspended it by rope from a tree along the river bank just below the Townsend Tractor company's plant at the foot of State street.

The police station was notified late in the evening and a hurry call was made in the patrol after County Coroner Lynn Whaley had been notified.

"Let's hurry and cut him down—maybe he's still alive," it is related.

The coroner said at the scene.

But this is contradicted by the fact that on his way down he met the police coming back and returned with them when told about the clever prank.

Banding the Birds

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., June 24.—To follow the travels and adventures of individual birds which wander over a large part of a continent, and sometimes of two continents, would seem an impossible undertaking; but the United States Biological Survey is now preparing to do this very thing. Dr. H. C. Oberholser, who told us about it, and other ornithologists at the bureau are confident of obtaining results of the greatest importance and interest.

The method by which this study is to be carried on is that of banding the birds—that is, catching them in traps, marking a record of species, age, sex and place of capture, then placing a band with a number and address on it about a leg of each bird and releasing it again. When this bird is recaptured, or in the case of a game bird, perhaps killed, something is learned of its travels and habits and the length of its life. When one bird is caught repeatedly, or when a number of birds of a certain species have been caught, a great deal may be learned about the habits of that kind of bird. The information so gained, especially that about the travels of the birds, will be of the greatest practical value to the making of regulations and international treaties under the migratory bird law which has given such wonderful results in the increase of migratory birds. It is known, for example, that many birds travel from North America to South America and to the West Indies, and it is expected, when more information about these migrants has been gained by trapping, to make treaties with those nations, similar to that which we now have with Canada, for the protection of these birds.

But the immediate and practical value of the studies is the smallest part of their interest to the scientists. They say that as the work progresses and the number of birds under observation increases, numerous facts will be discovered about their habits which cannot now be forecast. The science of ornithology heretofore has been engaged largely in the preliminary work of identifying and classifying the birds. Little systematic study has been given to their habits. The work of classification was of course necessary, but only as a preliminary to the study of bird habits. It is this latter study which really increases the value of birds to man, by teaching him how to protect those that are of value and get rid of those that are not. The importance to man of two great groups of birds—those that destroy insects and those that furnish food and sport—can scarcely be overestimated, and it is these that will be

PREPARING FOR THE WINTER.

Even the animals get ready for the winter. We are talking about our winter cool. We are tending gardens and raising wide areas of crops for winter food—against the day when we cannot produce. What are we doing for the human beings who also have to live and move and be entertained during the winter?

There is need in Janesville for a definite program. The city provides few places of entertainment; few things outside of theaters and the dance halls for the young. Are the churches taking any action? Are the social organizations doing something constructive for the winter—making any plans to a definite end and with a clear purpose?

What are our women's organizations doing for the future so close at hand?

Here is the big opportunity. Janesville is growing rapidly. We are adding new people every day. We are larger than our clothes.

The Gazette proposes one definite thing here: the support and employment of a band to give concerts through the winter weeks. It will take money to do it, as it does all things worth while. But we can make this one investment to a real definite end.

The Gazette will give $50 toward this fund. If nine others will give the same amount we can go ahead. There are a number of other things to do this winter and this is the time when the sun shines, when nature is singing her most harmonious songs, to remember the days of winter and prepare.

COAT IN JANESEVILLE.

In this issue of the Gazette the conditions which we are confronting here in Janesville as to a coal supply for the coming winter are told. The situation is acute. It demands something more than a mere passing comment. There is a possibility that we will have a fuel shortage that will not only work a hardship, but be a positive disaster. We may have to close schools for want of fuel. Nothing so far has shown that a supply will be at hand or obtainable for the school buildings of the city.

It matters nothing what it is, if we cannot remedy the condition at the source; we must make the most of the situation as we find it, but in the meantime we need not sit idle. There is to be a meeting of the representatives of cities both of municipal officers and leading civic organizations shortly at Milwaukee to see what steps should be taken to secure a fuel supply. Janesville is living a shovel to shovel existence now as to coal. If the railroads are tied up with a strike, as seems apparent, we will suffer acutely, and what is Janesville's condition will be that of the neighbors. City officials and the Chamber of Commerce have an opportunity here to get together and prepare for the future, and do it right now.

THE LEGAL RIGHT TO REMAIN IGNORANT.

The legal right to remain ignorant is annually granted to thousands of children in States where child labor and education laws are backward. According to an account of the administration of the Federal Child Labor Law, now to be published by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, only 782 children out of 19,694 to whom certificates were issued, or less than 4 per cent, had attended or completed the eighth grade, though completion of the eighth grade is generally regarded as necessary to secure even the rudiments of an education.

Only 1 of these 5 states has a compulsory school law for children up to 16, even when unemployed, and that permits many exemptions. Both parents and children, through ignorance of the value of schooling, are apt to take advantage of the legal right to dodge an education. In a recent study of school attendance in Cleveland, it was found that 2,550 children were so irregular in their attendance at school as to interfere with their studies, and that the reasons for staying out of school were in many cases trivial. Among foreign groups children were kept at home on bargain or market days to act as interpreters for their mothers.

In addition to law school attendance laws, 3 of the 5 states permit children 16 years old and younger to go to work even if they can not read or write or have never been to school. Two require only that the child applying for work shall have gone to school for a brief period during the preceding year. Among the other states in the United States 23 require the completion of a specified grade, and 12 more and the District of Columbia require the ability to read and write.

None of the 5 states where children were granted certificates makes any provision for continuation schools in childhood. Only 13 states in the United States have laws which make such provision. England, under the English Education Act, which went into effect April 1, is rapidly establishing continuation schools throughout the country, and will shortly compel attendance up to the age of 18. Every effort is being made in that country to get teachers with the best training and to arrange suitable courses of study for working children, in order that they may have every opportunity not to grow up illiterates because they have been unfortunate.

Emma Goldman wants to come home and tell us about the horrors of bolshevik government. Hero is where Mr. Burstein should perch up the masts a little and let Emma tell us about it by letter.

There is to be a meeting of the representatives of cities both of municipal officers and leading civic organizations shortly at Milwaukee to see what steps should be taken to secure a fuel supply. The Biological Survey is now asking for volunteers to help carry on the work, and anyone who is interested should get in touch with that bureau. The Survey will furnish the bands and instructions how to trap, handle and band the birds, but the expense of the work must be borne by the individual. The Survey hopes to establish stations of "trapping stations" across and up and down the river, so that it will get reports from all sections. Persons who live in the country or in the suburbs who are interested in birds, and who know by sight the varieties of birds in their own neighborhood, are qualified for the work. In other words you must be a pretty good amateur ornithologist to do this work, and you must have the patience to carry it on for a long period of time in order to get valuable results. If you are willing and able to do this, you have now an opportunity to make a real contribution to science.

The methods of bird trapping have been perfected, and some remarkable results already obtained by members of the American Bird Banding Association.

Those who have been banding report that he has aged in an amazing way and has lost the peculiar alertness which always had been so striking about him.

The astonishing thing about Lloyd George is that he has stood so long against a strain of work such as no man has ever been known to face with success, at any rate in the public life of his country.

Even since he came into office in 1915, his public life has been a succession of the most trying crises and the most stupendous public horrors. Fifteen years of such extreme trials could only be borne because one either breaks down or gets inured to such pressure on the mind and nerves of the necessarily sedentary character of the occupation.

Elthelred Lloyd George has shown the needed capacity to detach himself from his work at will and turn from the gravest problems to the lightest entertainments in rapid succession.

But at his present age, instead of growing easier, he is becoming more onerous every day, the problems he aims to solve are becoming more insoluble at every fresh attempt, as his political future becomes more obscure the hope of success does not afford the relief required to sustain him, so the wearings effects of impending failure and catastrophe are becoming visible.

Lloyd George is fifty-seven years old. He is a Welshman.

One of the questions that has long puzzled ornithologists is whether birds travel the same routes in their migrations, and spend the winters and summers in the same places. Mr. Baldwin found this to be exactly true of certain species. The same white-throated sparrows came year after year to his place in Georgia, spending successive winters not only in the same locality but literally about the same bush.

Mr. Baldwin used in his operations a trap which injures the bird very little or not at all, and he found that they were not badly frightened by being captured. Many birds were captured again and again, and some of them even insisted in spending most of their time in the trap where there was plenty of food.

He was surprised to find how much individual character the birds had. Thus one sparrow which he captured repeatedly, he came to know as a fighter. It would always peck and bite at him with great courage and ferocity when he took it in his hand. But another bird of the same species showed an equally consistent character as a fighter, and was equally fit to fight, but always silent.

When a man has a birthday he sometimes takes a day off, but when a woman has a birthday she generally takes a year off.—Columbia Record.

It is not necessary that one should return from the dead in order to convince us that there are no profiteers in heaven.—Greenville Pledge.

The wild ducks, geese, and shorebirds are among the most important varieties to be studied by this method. They are of the greatest value for food and sport, and their protection under modern conditions depends upon an accurate knowledge of their migration habits. A member of the bird banding association at Windsor, Ontario, has been trapping and banding wild fowl for many years, and has perfected the methods so that the scientists say they will have no difficulty in banding thousands of these birds, and in solving many of the mysteries of their far travels.

This is probably the first and certainly the greatest co-operative national effort in the study of bird habits ever undertaken, and it should have the support of all who have the knowledge and the time to help.

THE GERMAN-AMERICAN VOTE.

There is the opinion here and there among German-Americans that one could not protest more effectively against the political and economic conditions of the last few years than by voting the socialist ticket. As to its practical effects, such an attitude can have—aside from a few exceptions—but the one meaning that these hangers-on of socialism simply throw away their votes.

To vote for candidates who cannot expect to succeed is a ridiculous and useless undertaking, even though it was conceived only as a protest. Protests which have no real power behind them are doomed to be tabled.—Eric Tageblatt (German).

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

June 24, 1880.—J. H. Wingate has given out the news that he will sell out his entire outfit of dry goods, soon and move to some near city to set up a store in general stock. He has run his store here for a good many years. A number of people of this city will go to Beloit next Wednesday to hear Remenyl, who plays at the Senior concert.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

June 24, 1890.—Many fine displays of strawberries and roses of different varieties were on exhibition at the strawberry and rose show in the council chamber at the city hall today. L. T. Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, has passed the examination for entrance to West Point, according to a letter received by his parents today.

Twenty Years Ago

June 24, 1910.—Mrs. Sarah H. Davies, for many years a resident of this city, died at her home last night. Nearly a thousand people attended the annual picnic of the local chapter of the Modern Woodmen at Yost's park yesterday afternoon. Grant Hyde, a graduate of the local high school, graduated from Yale Wednesday with high honors.

THE MORAN MALE

Plenty of Check

One drawback about knowledge is that it makes you aware of so many things you don't know. Perhaps that is why some of the modern plausible brands of healing are so popular. Some of the claims of the preliminary education in from six months to 12 months, "the graduate" goes forth with no disturbing doubts about things which were not included in the course.

And the public, in general, is short-sighted about such extraneous matters. For instance, the good people seldom stop to reason why ordinary young men and women, with high school and collegiate training, can acquire no fair knowledge of anatomy, physiology, and the nature of the human body in full years, whereas the barber shop or canning factory graduate can master these formidable subjects in six months to 12 months—master them I repeat.

From time to time I have referred to the use of tobacco by boys. I have to admit the plain fact that tobacco in any form decreases a boy's physical endurance and therefore renders him unfit to compete successfully in athletics; that it definitely lowers mental capacity and therefore makes a boy a poor class student in school or in college; and that it tends to impair the moral fibre of youth, which is none too strong, as we all know.

A boy is a boy until he is old enough to vote.

Tobacco undoubtedly does grown men a great deal of harm, impairs their mental and physical efficiency.

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

PHYLIS PHILLIPS

IN WHICH OUR HEROINE DETERMINES TO ESCAPE.

What a moment! Maybe the world can imagine how I felt as I felt myself falling into the clutch of my Nemesis. Tears came to my eyes, but a gentle squeeze from Cecil made me come to my senses just in time.

"Why, Lindsey dear, where on earth were you? I have been waiting and waiting for you, and Julia (my cousin) has just gone home. She despaired of you arriving at all. She doesn't know how persistent your Aunt Patricia is. She just waited, and I am rewarded, as you see. All this time she was grating at me, then at Cecil. I had the forethought to introduce him to her as Mr. Walter Jones, which threw her off the track completely, and I knew she would save any scandal-monging in my home town. In case anyone wrote home saying that she had brought me at the station, I had written to my mother, telling her of the family's secret, and told of the secret to the police, which had disclosed me for so long.

Aunt Patricia told me that the family motor was waiting without, and piloted me towards it. I just had time to whisper frantically to Cecil to be sure and come up with me. I had to leave the house, for I must be away from Auntie, come what may. He nodded in reply. It's comforting to know that there is one person who will never fail you. I almost wish that Cecil were.... No, I'm not sure of myself, but yet so much.

We climbed into the family motor and were driven solemnly off to the family mansion in Beacon street. I don't know what it is about the city of Boston that irritated me. After all, I'm the wife, the wife, drawing along everywhere about you, on

QUAINT DESCRIBES THIS SMART FROCK OF SILK GINGHAM

BY ELOISE.

Do you want something new, something different and unusual for an extra frock in your summer wardrobe? Here is an idea which ought to please. It is a frock of plaid silk gingham which most appropriate member of the gingham family. It is available for many occasions and fits in nicely as an extra frock for general wear when traveling or staying at home.

The style of the frock is quaint and attractive. It is made with a bustle-like waist which is longer in the back than in the front. A plain, rather narrow skirt is relieved by an accordian pleated overskirt which extends to the hem. The bustle part is cut out from only a short panel in the front. Short sleeves and an accordian pleated ruffle at the neck are the other features of the frock to be noted. This style, while very quaint and charming, is not particularly easy to wear and neither the girl who is too tall nor the one who is too stout should attempt it. The child in this instance is brown and tan, brown seeming to take precedence over blue as the season's favorite color.

TRY TO KEEP YOUR CHILDREN PROUD.

Let them feel that they must work hard to get ahead and not that they have a claim on some one else. You are proud on your own account, draw on her pride and feed pride. Some of the eight children ought to be a help to you. The girls could get work washing dishes in some private homes, and the boys could sell newspapers, mow lawns or get positions as office-boys through the summer months at least.

You have not mentioned a husband. If he is alive and not doing his duty, get the probate court after him.

Of course I would have no trouble to borrow or even get a donation if it could be published in big black in the papers—it they should give their charity from the house tops.

I try to hope for something better, but when day after day and night after night no relief comes and I am compelled to lie in my little bed full of rug lumps, we are very discouraged, especially in view of the fact that I see no way of bettering conditions when it costs so much for food alone.

DISCOURAGED BEING.

To straighten out your trouble it is best to look at both sides of the question. Of course you reflect all the time so much "what's in the world with these stories that the hearts of many people have become hardened until now they resent any cry for help. Very often a rich man helps in many directions, but he prefers to discover the trouble himself. The rich man makes money his field and forgets humanity. What we need is more charity and less greed. God has become such a scourge to the country of ours that it is hard to almost every heart to see him in such a field. How can we, then, the church class, on a small scale, work for what they can't? This is the carpenter, plumber, etc. Isn't it a question of getting instead of giving with most of them? Every man and woman alive should stop to think whether his self is fit to enter the kingdom of heaven.

The principle of borrowing is wrong, if you could pay it back, you could also save the amount each week which you would expect to pay

Soviet Russia Can Teach Western Europe Nothing

London, June 24.—A Reuter dispatch from Stockholm today quotes Mrs. Philip Snowden and Dr. Guest, members of the British labor delegation, as wanting to investigate conditions in Russia. They are to be in Stockholm on their return, as declaring that, in their view, soviet Russia could teach western Europe nothing. Socialism, they predicted, would prevail in Great Britain long before it would in Russia, the mes-

RECIPES FOR A DAY
Red Beans, Spanish Style—One cup red beans, one cup cubed beef (both previously cooked), two onions, two cloves garlic, one bunch of Spanish beans, two cups boiling water, stock or tomatoes, and salt, pepper and chili powder to season.

Brown the onion and meat in the fat and add all the ingredients, cover and cook slowly until water is entirely evaporated.

One-Crust Rhubarb Pie—One cup rhubarb sauce (well sweetened), one tablespoon cornstarch and yolk of one egg. Have the rhubarb boiling and add the cornstarch and egg. Stir until thickened and remove from the fire. Pour into previously baked crust and cover with meringue or whipped cream. This is a good way to use a little of the sauce left over.

String Bean Salad—Mix equal parts of cooked string beans and beets with boiled salad dressing and garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

String Bean Salad (in season)—Cook one quart string beans, after stringing, and cut the ends off with a sharp knife. When tender, drain in cold water. Drain from this the water very good, so they will be almost dry. Place them in salad dish. Chop parsley (five cents dish) and a small onion and serve with French dressing.

Cornflake Mucarons—(About 50)
One cup sugar, two eggs, three-quarters cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon butter, two and one-half cups cornflakes, one-half cup vanilla.

Cream butter and sugar together.

Add yolks of eggs, then add cornflakes to which baking powder has been added. Add vanilla. Stir flour in them well. Beat whites of eggs and add last.

Drop in buttered tins with teaspoon, but very few on each tin, as they spread.

Strawberry Shortcake—Two cups flour, four, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons butter, one egg, three-quarters cup milk, one quart strawberries.

Wash and stem berries, sprinkle with sugar and let them stand one-half hour or more.

Sift dry ingredients into a bowl, mix well, add to this the milk and egg (well beaten). Spread in a greased pan and bake in quick oven 20 to 25 minutes. When done split in halves and butter both halves. Put layer of strawberries on lower half and replace top crust.

DOUGHNUTS
When serving small individual pies or tarts, in order to have them crisp so that the bottom does not become soggy, have the crusts baked and just before serving fill with any fresh or canned fruit preferred. A little whipped cream on the top of the fruit adds greatly to taste and appearance.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

BY ERITH MORTARTY

A striking illustration of the general emancipation of Turkish women brought about by the war is afforded by the designation of Zelihha Hanoum as minister of education in the cabinet of the Turkish sultan, Mrs. Hanoum, the wife of Adan Bey, formerly president of the Turkish Red Crescent and until recently minister of health. She is 35 years old, the mother of three children, a devout Mohammedan and has translated famous Pan-Islamic novels.

Mrs. Hanoum, who is called the most prominent woman in Turkey today, is, perhaps, the most celebrated pioneer in the movement for higher education of Turkish women. She was the first Turkish girl to graduate from an American college in Turkey, despite the persistent opposition of the former sultan, who forced her to discontinue her studies many times. Later she was an instructor in French in the Turkish school at Istanbul.

Although educated in a school where the teachers were all Christians, she retained her Mohammedan faith but removed the black veil from her face, many of the Turkish women have done. She is a firm believer in the superior cultural value of Mohammed's teachings. Because of her unusual power as an orator, she has been a popular speaker in behalf of political movements and in 1918 she gave a speech in which she said: "We shall never consent to be separated from Thrace and Smyrna with their historical monuments. The cross shall never be raised over our mosques."

HARDING'S SISTER IS POLICEWOMAN

Mrs. Herbert H. Votaw, sister of Senator Warren G. Harding, has been named by Elihu B. Frost, of Paterson, N. J., millionaire head of the Submarine Boat Corporation, in his suit for divorce. According to Frost, his wife was guilty of misconduct with the co-respondents during June, July and August, 1918.

RED SOX TO PLAY SAMSON SECONDS

Will Open Series for City Championship—Rails May Challenge Winers.

Scheduling of a series of games between the Samson Nationals and the Janeville Red Sox to play for the city baseball championship brings forth two games this weekend, at the fair grounds diamond while the big Samson team is away in Milwaukee. Dates for the battles of the series have not been definitely set and will be announced later.

The Samson Nationals represent the big tractor company as its second team. The Red Sox are practically the same bunch as piled together under that name four years ago and had the most successful season. Kukuske and Viney, two old Sox players, the former member of the team of Milton college, will be in the lineup this week.

May Be Sharp Contest.

While the Pabst Beer company team won the city championship in the old league last year from a field of industrial teams, it is not expected that they will issue any challenge to the winners of the series, since they have not organized since this year. However, there is a strong possibility that the Rails, representing the M. & St. P., will put in a bid to play the winner, while other teams might also decide to take a crack at the title, perhaps the Northwestern as one.

Indications are that the series will awaken a great interest among the fans of the town. Prevailing ball fans of the town, while the first team is on the road, it is quite sure to draw a number of fans who otherwise would not know, what to do with themselves on the weekend.

HOT DOG! TRIPLE PLAY PULLED OFF

Fulton, June 24.—Triple plays are hard to make in ball games and they are of rare occurrence during a game, but one was pulled off in a game between St. Marys, Kas., and the Choctaw Indians, that will go down in the annals of the most peculiar plays ever staged on a ball field. The ball after it left the bat of the pitcher, A. St. Marys' batter hit the ball into the air toward short with the bases loaded and was called out as it was an infield fly. The wind blew and the ball toward second as it fell and hit a runner there who was called out for being hit by a batted ball. The Indians then rolled toward first, and the runner there, disgusted at the luck of his teammates picked up the ball and threw it out of the lot. He was promptly called out by the umpire.

WHITE TOO ROUGH FOR SPARRING MATES; LEONARD TO CAMP

Benton Harbor, Mich., June 24.—Charley White, Chicago's challenger for the lightweight crown, worn by Benny Leonard of New York, going to have a hard time holding his sparring partners, it doesn't ease him up to his training here. White, who is to settle Leonard on the afternoon of July 5 here, is "tough medicine" for his sparring partners, and although he has been working only a few days here, he has cracked one of the canvas and others—one of them to the canvas and others—mauled the other.

Chicago, June 24.—Benny Leonard, who fights Charley White at Benton Harbor on July 5, is making his stop here a brief one. After a workout at the Arcade Gym yesterday, the champion decided to go to his training camp at Eastman Springs today. His manager, Billy Benjamin, will accompany him. Leonard needs training, which explains the reason for his hurried departure from Chicago.

Confession of Elwell's Housekeeper Solves Pink Pajama Girl Mystery

Mrs. Marie Larsen, the housekeeper, as she appeared before the district attorney.

This discovery you have brought me lessens the possible murder period from 65 to less than 30 minutes.

"I am not at all certain that two other persons—the murderer and perhaps some one else—were not in the house when Elwell was slain."

Sister Reveals Message.

That Elwell telephoned Miss Ellenson, a burnette of 20, at her home in Asbury Park about 8 o'clock on the morning of the fatal day, was established by the girl's sister, Miss Peggy Ellenson. She said that Florence had met Elwell that day when he learned that she knew the identity of the woman, who for identification purposes had the protection of her family, had been referred to by the police as "Miss Wilson."

Elwell Alive at 8 o'clock.

But that some man fired the shot which ended Elwell's career is the belief of the police, and they admit it cannot say. But it has been established that Elwell was alive at 8 o'clock the morning of the murder; that he called the home of Miss Florence C. Ellenson at Asbury Park at that hour; that his relatives with the "Klimono" girl were known to a former postman, who learned that Elwell died in her when he learned that she knew the identity of the woman, who for identification purposes had the protection of her family, had been referred to by the police as "Miss Wilson."

Phone Call Important.

The discovery of the 8 o'clock phone call is declared of vital importance by District Attorney Swana, who said:

"The discovery that Elwell was alive at 8 o'clock is of tremendous importance, because it shows that in all likelihood he did not go downstairs to answer the postman's light ring at 7:35, and admit the man who killed him either came in with a key, was admitted by Elwell or some one else, or slipped into the house after Elwell telephoned this young woman."

Lessons in Swimming

How to Swim and How to Aid Drowning Persons Will Be Told in the Department of the Gazette, Material Furnished by the Wisconsin Y. M. C. A.

WHY DROWN?
Life Saving Epistles by Commodore E. B. Longfellow, Field Agent, Life Saving Corps, American Red Cross.

"The best way to drown is to throw up both hands and holler help." If you want to get ashore, reach for it, first with one hand and then with the other, but if you want to get to heaven, reach for it and you will get it by way of the bottom."

"Swimming, according to a small boy, is the only exercise you can come clean from."

"The small boy makes a good life saver because he has not learned fear, and three of him are probably present before the first adult arrives on the scene."

"If the duck had to wear shoes and stocking he would never have learned to swim."

Another Road Is Drawn Into Eastern Rail Strike

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore, June 24.—The Western Maryland was drawn into the railroad strike today when the entire yard force at Hagerstown, numbering about 225 men, went out. Yard operations were reported to be at a standstill, but the movement of passengers and freight trains was not impeded, it was said. The situation in Baltimore was said to be improved today.

CARE OF HORSES IN HOT WEATHER IS IMPORTANT

1. Load lightly, and drive slowly.

2. Stop in the shade if possible.

3. Wash the horse often, as necessary. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few sips now and then.

4. When he comes in after work, sponge off the sweat from his nose and mouth and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, sponge him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.

6. Saturday night, give a bran mash, turn warm, and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.

7. Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

8. A sponge on top, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry, it will not do.

9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, and sponge him down with his legs and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre in a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

10. Give him a nice cup of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating, sponge him off, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of sun stroke and needs attention at once.

12. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, put him outside, when he comes in, cool him down, and he will cool off during the next day's heat.

13. If the horse is off his feed, mix him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water, and add a little salt or sugar.

14. If the horse is in the stable at night, put him outside, when he comes in, cool him down, and he will cool off during the next day's heat.

GRAIN

Chicago Review
Chicago, June 24.—Larger receipts than were looked for had a bearish effect today on the grain market. The market was quiet and there was general selling in which an eastern interest appeared active. Pressure from the bears, however, was not strong. The crop shortage was materially larger than at first predicted.

Conventions of Lancaster county tobacco growers took up the question of European selling. A committee was appointed to investigate the foreign market for direct marketing.

Many of the big department stores in England are reported to be amalgamating.

Oats were easier, with corn after opening the market. After a decline in the market, including a fall at $5.50 @ $5.60, the market showed a tendency to average below yesterday's finish.

Provisions reflected the weakness of the market.

In the later dealings weakness became more acute and active. The prevailing prices were 25¢ @ 55¢ cents bushel in excess of feeding grain. Bushel of barley was 4¢ @ 4½¢ not lower with July 1, 76¢ @ 77¢ and Sept. 1, 87¢ @ 87½¢.
